COLLECTION OVERVIEW

Scope and content note

This collection documents McGinness' extensive career campaigning for the rights and advancement of Australian Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders. The material dates from 1958 when McGinness was founding Secretary of the Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders Advancement League (Cairns) and they span the next 40 years of his life.

Based in Cairns from 1951, McGinness was particularly active on various councils, organisations and committees in the North Queensland region, including Aboriginal Hostels Ltd, Cooperative for Aborigines Ltd, Njiku Jowan Legal Service, Cairns and District Regional Council, Aboriginal and Islander Forum and Cairns Indigenous Elders Council. The papers also reflect his involvement in the Aboriginal rights movement on a national level, including his 17 year term as President of the Federal Council for the Advancement of Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders (FCAATSI).

McGinness campaigned on numerous issues relating to Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders. He was active in the petition for a 1967 referendum to change the Australian Constitution, worked towards changing Queensland legislation and the Trust Fund Accounts system, fought against discriminatory clauses of the Tuberculosis Act, and successfully campaigned for repatriation benefits for Torres Strait Islander ex-servicemen. Other issues documented throughout the collection include the campaigns for civil and legal rights, legislative reform, land rights, equal wages, and educational and employment opportunities.

The material in the collection includes correspondence, reports, minutes, manuscript drafts, financial papers, press statements, pamphlets, newsletters, newspaper clippings and other printed material. The collection contains a large number of roneoed documents and a number of photocopied documents.

SERIES DESCRIPTIONS

Series 1 Federal Council for the Advancement of Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders (FCAATSI), 1959-78

The Federal Council for the Advancement of Aborigines (later the Federal Council for the Advancement of Aborigines and Torres Strait Islanders) was established, in February 1958, at a Federal Conference called by the Aborigines Advancement Leagues of Victoria and South Australia, and the Council for Aboriginal Rights (Victoria). The 1958 conference in Adelaide became the first in a series of annual conferences on Aboriginal affairs attended by delegates from a large membership of affiliated Aboriginal advancement groups, churches and unions. Following a motion at the 1978 conference, FCAATSI changed its name to the National Aboriginal and Islander Liberation Movement (NAILM). Joe McGinness was elected President of FCAATSI in 1961. He served in this capacity until 1974, and again from 1975 until FCAATSI's decline in 1979.

FCAATSI played a vital role in Aboriginal affairs, particularly during the 1960s and early 1970s. One of the most vigorous and successful campaigns in which FCAATSI was involved was the 1967 referendum to change the Australian Constitution, successfully petitioning for the inclusion of Aboriginal people in the Census, and giving the Federal Government the right to legislate for Aborigines. FCAATSI also fought for legislative change, legal and civil rights, land rights, educational and employment opportunities, equal wages, political representation, independence and self-determination. There are also papers on the Papua New Guinea/Queensland border dispute, the 1970 bicentenary of the landing of Captain Cook, Queensland Trust Fund accounts, and other issues affecting Aboriginal communities, such as the removal of Aborigines from Mapoon in 1962-63, the Gurindji land rights claim, and wolfram mining on Banks (Moa) Island.

This series includes correspondence between McGinness and members of FCAATSI, including Stan Davey, Faith Bandler, Barry Christophers, Pauline Pickford, Evelyn Scott, Dulcie Flower, Charles Perkins, Stan Smith, Mamie Smith, Kath Walker (Oodgeroo Noonuccal), Daisy Marchisotti, Barrie Pittock, Jack Horner, Jean Horner, Janet Layton, Marcia Langton, Josie Briggs and Michael Shegog, regarding the organisation and administration of FCAATSI. There is also correspondence from the general public, trade unions, the World Council of Churches, Abschol and other affiliated organisations, and government ministers and officials.

The series also includes minutes and resolutions of meetings, reports, papers relating to annual Conferences on Aborigines' and Islanders' Affairs and matters relating to Aboriginal issues, press statements, newsletters and financial papers.

Series 2 National Aboriginal and Islander Liberation Movement (NAILM), 1978/79

At the 21st FCAATSI Annual Conference, held in Canberra in 1978, a proposal was moved by General Secretary, Gordon Briscoe, to change the name of FCAATSI to the National Aboriginal and Islander Liberation Movement. In a letter to affiliates dated 24 March 1978 Briscoe argued that the word 'Advancement' was 'paternalistic and obsolete' and that 'our objective is to liberate Aborigines and Island peoples, their land, societies and institutions from Colonial oppression'. The proposal was passed.

Series 11 Makarrata vs Treaty Committee, 1979-81

The Aboriginal Treaty Committee (ATC), chaired by Dr H.C. Coombs, was formed in 1979. The ATC advocated a 'treaty of commitment', to be freely negotiated by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander representatives with the Commonwealth Government, and guaranteeing the protection of Aboriginal identity, languages, law and culture; the restoration of rights to land and natural resources; and compensation for the loss of traditional lands.

The National Aboriginal Conference (NAC) formed a sub-committee to pursue the idea of a 'Makarrata' (treaty), calling for comment from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander organisations and communities. Following a meeting of representatives from Aboriginal organisations in the Cairns and district area, a Cairns 'Makarrata vs Treaty' Committee was formed, with Joe McGinness as Chairman. The Makarrata/Treaty of Commitment failed to receive widespread endorsement, and the ATC disbanded in 1983.
